

Rachel Coffield, APRN, MSN, Coordinator of Health Services. Received her undergraduate degree from Bates College in Psychology with a concentration in Women's Studies. Upon graduating she moved to Seattle, WA where she worked alongside nurses, nurse practitioners and physicians in public health community clinics; exposing her to a variety of health and social issues of the uninsured and most vulnerable of our societies. This experience inspired her to apply to nursing school. She attended Seattle University where she completed both her Registered Nurse requirements and received a Master's in Science and Nursing. She has worked as a Family Nurse Practitioner for over six years in primary care settings and school health. She has been with NEC as a Nurse Practitioner for over two years. She has a particular interest in adolescent and young adult health.
