LAS 1110 Nature vs Humanity

Through such films as Life of Pi, Into the Wild, Wild, The 33, Everest, Room, Lord of the Flies, The Road, The Martian, Nell, and The Grey, we will endeavor to explore the relationship between our share humanity and the natural world. What do we understand about the natural world around us? Why do we seek it out? How do we survive it? And what do we learn about ourselves in the process? Students will engage in critical thinking, writing and exploration of stories that engage in humanities relationship with the outside world, or complete separation from it.

LAS 1120 Democratic Values in a Digitally Connected World

This course is an exploration and an interdisciplinary account of human rights as universal right and the ways in which developing technologies can and have facilitated action, helping to reveal the inhumane and unfair practices of cultures, dictators, terrorist and their supports, worldwide. Beginning with the principles of democratic values as articulated in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the content of this course will examine the role of communication technologies in relation to the principle of free and open sharing of information, necessary for a fully functioning democratic society. Discussions will include how social media has changed how people convey ideas of religious, social, and political freedom, can help to mobilize resistance to shared injustices worldwide, and on-going attempts to control and limit a people's basic and fundamental right to know.
