FALL 2021 COURSE DESCRIPTIONS NOT FOUND IN CATALOG

Residential Undergraduate Catalog: <http://catalog.nec.edu/index.php>

AR 3990 Sp Tp: Mixed Media

Over the course of this study students will explore the concept of mixed-media, combining a range of materials and approaches to making art. In efforts to expand our understanding of how to create spatial relationships we will work with both 2-D & 3-D elements. We will investigate symbolism through the use of shape within the context of a theme and develop ideas using text with image. We will experiment with the potential of natural materials and create visual narratives based on personal experience.

AR 3990 Topics: Landscape Painting

Analysis of space and organization of composition are just some of the challenges of the landscape painter. This course builds on the student's previously acquired painting skills in order to explore the visual culture of landscape traditions in both historical and contemporary contexts. On- and off-site assignments are intended to reflect student knowledge of practical demonstrations and illustrated lectures.

CAR 2990 Graphic Novel – Writing & Illustrating- Part 1 – Writing

In a do-it-yourself style class, students will get a crash course on how to make their own zines. We will turn a simple sheet of blank copy paper into an eight-page fold-out zine! Students will craft short stories and illustrate their multiple zines throughout the semester while exploring a variety of approaches to creating them from utilizing InDesign to Photoshop to Procreate.

CAR 2990 Graphic Novel – Writing & Illustrating- Part 2 – Drawing

Part two of the Graphic Novel Storytelling course will focus on illustrating the stories developed over the previous seven weeks. A variety of illustrative approaches will be sought.

CAR 2990 Sp Tp: Drawing your Journal

Drawing the Journal is a course designed to help students use information from personal experiences in creating visual images and stories. Through a series of prompts and exercises, they will record experiences – in both words and images – that will encourage them to keep journals as a resource for their creative lives and use them as inspiration for visual projects and professional narrative. Media will be exclusively traditional, and experimentation with various media will be encouraged.

CAR 3990 Making Zines

In a do-it-yourself style class, students will get a crash course on how to make their own zines. We will turn a simple sheet of blank copy paper into an eight-page fold-out zine! Students will craft short stories and illustrate their multiple zines throughout the semester while exploring a variety of approaches to creating them from utilizing InDesign to Photoshop to Procreate.

DES 3990 Sp Tp: UI/UX Design

Every digital interface/interaction (e.g. web and mobile application, car dashboard, smart appliance) was designed to solve a problem or to make our lives better, easier, more successful. Every time someone uses their phone, the buttons they push, the gestures to swipe up, down, left right, the font choices, the color scheme—all these were designed by a UI/UX designer. In other words, UI/UX is the communication layer between the computer software and the user. This hands-on, projects-based course explores the principles and practice of user interface and user experience design for digital platforms.

ILL 3990 Sp Tp: Concept Art I

Concept Art is one of the largest fields of illustration. This course will explore Concept Art techniques, which are primarily utilized in game, television, and film creation. Students will focus on creating multiple solutions to visual elements within an imagined environment. The thematic visual experience comprised of character; environment & architecture will be explored. Ample focus will be placed on the various stages of concept development, ranging from initial ideation and sketches to fully realized illustrations depicting a character or environment.

ILL 3990 Sp Tp: Ink and Color

Students will explore the history, tradition and artists of western ink art & colorization and its influence and application within the contemporary illustration field. Strong drawing, aesthetic applications, design principals and painting methods from editorial, comics and sequential art will be utilized while visually conveying provided and self-created content. The course will focus on traditional mediums (inks) for drawing and incorporate both traditional and digital methods for colorization.

ILL 3990 Sp Tp: Children's Book

Illustration Special Topics: Children's Books illustration will concentrate on the process of creating a children's picture book. The student will choose one of the six public domain stories offered and develop it into a 32 page narrative picture book—exploring character development, page layout, and composition as well as flow and continuity. Beginning with the storyboard, the student will create a thumbnail version of their story that will provide a guide as they develop the book dummy.

ILL 3990 Special Topics: Packaging Design and Illustration

This course will focus on the development and application of graphics catered to packaging for various products. Students will explore the integration of informational text and illustrative image in packaging design with a focus on hierarchy, organization, and legibility. The primary assignment in this course will be centered on the packaging design for an educational resource box stemming from The Portsmouth Historical Society's forthcoming children's literature exhibition, Imagine That! Working with the client, students will have the opportunity to develop the graphics on a box containing various craft supplies, bookmaking instructions, and more. Multiples of the educational resource box will be sent to local schools and libraries for workshops with children.

ILL 3990 Topics Advanced Illustration

The conceptual illustrator is tasked with coming up with new ideas that translate into original, visual content. Students will create weekly illustrations within the provided themes. The idea counts more than the method when talking about conceptual illustration. The concept is what catches your attention first, though the way it's drawn matters too. Some illustrators start their creative problem-solving with a list of words when working on an assigned topic; others free associate, and some sketch out their ideas until one of their concepts stands out from the rest. Many conceptual illustrations rely upon a play on words or a visual pun, others combine two very different subjects we wouldn't usually think of together. The goal of great conceptual illustration is to make us think. An image that stops us in our tracks as we browse through articles and ads online or in a magazine, newspaper, or book, is what the best of conceptual illustration does. Keeping it simple is the goal; getting the message across, the number one concern.

PHO 3990 Tpcs: Visualizing Cntmpry Issues

Contemporary art, as we experience it in galleries, museums and online includes more and more multi-medium/multi-media approaches and visualization of concepts and ideas. The default method of working in many mediums starts with the prescribed or chosen medium (painting, photography, printmaking, etc.) and only then the artist is called to express their chosen topic/concept and solve the visual problem within the medium's boundaries and capabilities. "Special Topics: Visualizing Contemporary Issues" will attempt to reverse this equation and to encourage the students to experiment in any medium or art-form they desire for each assignment and topic. The class will introduce current issues that are widely explored and expressed in contemporary art across many different mediums. Each topic will be presented to the students through a lecture, prescribed readings with class discussion and a unique assignment that will propel the student to find the appropriate medium to express their idea/point of view regarding the discussed topic. Every assignment will be followed with in depth critique/discussion.
